Telephones The public telephones work with cards that can be acquired in kiosks and telephone company offices or with local coins. There are also locutorios where you pay in cash (open 24 hours). In order to call Argentina from abroad, first dial the country code, (54) and then the area code of the locality sought (Buenos Aires is 11) and then the local number. For national domestic calls it is necessary to dial 0 before the respective area code. To call abroad from inside Argentina, dial 00, the country code and the code of the corresponding city. There are reduced tariffs between 22:00 to 8:00 hours.

Transfers At Argentina Tango we believe in people doing what they are good at. As a result, we have partnered with a top transportation company in Argentina to perform all our transfers both in and out of Buenos Aires and around. You can rest assured that you are in good hands with professional drivers.

Tango Teachers All of our teachers are experienced and qualified to teach tango. The advantage of organizing private tango classes with us is that we find out what you want and need and get the best teacher for you. Although you can find a teacher on your own, you might be wasting valuable time and money with lessons that are not tailored to your specific needs. We can save you money and time and actually get you dancing.

Studios Our studios are strategically located around Buenos Aires and are fully equipped. You will not have to waste time traveling from your hotel to our studios; we have thought of that and keep you close to your hotel. Some of the hotels have studios that we use too, and you might not even need to leave your hotel for your classes – how convenient is that?

Argentina Argentina is the second largest country in South America. Geographically it can be divided into four main areas: the Andes, from the high plateau north of Salta down to the glaciated region in the Patagonian south; Mesopotamia, the flood plains of the river systems that eventually emerge in the River Plate; the Pampas, in the centre of the country around the capital, Buenos Aires, where the most fertile land is found; and Patagonia, the starkly beautiful, arid, windswept southern part of the country. A third of the population live in and around Buenos Aires, which leaves the rest of the country with one of the sparsest population densities in South America. The people are of mainly Spanish and Italian extraction, although there are sizeable English and Welsh communities.

Climate and when to go The climate ranges from sub-tropical in the north-east to cold temperate in Tierra del Fuego. The summer months of December to March are warmest in the south, although the autumn colors in late April are spectacular, particularly in the Lake District. The Skiing season is from June to September. Buenos Aires can be very hot and humid in January and February, and quite cold in winter.

Buenos Aires The capital of Argentina is a cosmopolitan city, often referred to as the Paris of South America, with fine hotels, shops, and colonial buildings. Situated on the banks of the Rio de la Plata, the city is laid out on a grid system, with some spectacularly wide avenues. Different parts of the city have quite distinct flavors. Buenos Aires is home to an array of theaters, museums, tango houses and landmark buildings, including the beautiful opera house, the Teatro Colon and the presidential residence, known as the "Pink Palace." The city also boasts of many fine restaurants – be sure to taste our world-famous Argentine grass-fed beef and fine local wines.

Buenos Aires is divided into 47 neighborhoods. The most famous are Palermo, Barrio Norte, Recoleta, Belgrano, San Telmo, La Boca, Retiro and Downtown. In the northern part of the city you'll find the most fashionable areas -- Recoleta, Palermo and Belgrano -- filled with cafes, restaurants and designer shops. In the south are the funkier areas such as San Telmo, a bohemian neighborhood, with its artists' studios and antique shops and La Boca, a working class and industrial area famous for its colorful painted houses. In the middle are Barrio Norte, Retiro and the Downtown area, the latter famous for its museums, pedestrian streets and government buildings.

There are many other wonderful regions to explore if you'd like to get to know Argentina beyond Buenos Aires. Let us suggest areas to visit based on your interests and help you plan your trip. For example, you might want to explore the Pampas further and visit an estancia, living like a gaucho for the day. Experience breathtaking Iguazu Falls. Tour the wine country in Mendoza. Ski, fish or cruise in the Lake District or hike the wilds of Patagonia. Your choices are unlimited!

Argentina's spectacular geography is the perfect setting for your enjoyment and with our planning you can experience it to its fullest. Contact us for all your travel needs and we will plan an unforgettable experience for you. info@argentinatango.com
